Taxable Revenue and Exemptions

When the University provides goods or services for purchase by external parties, HST must be applied in accordance with the Canada Revenue Agency's Tax Act. The following is an index of common goods and services, and their tax status. This document can be referenced by Departments when creating an invoice request, or planning for additional revenue streams.

Please note: sales to internal parties, including sales to University of Windsor research grants, departments, and trusts, are exempt from tax.

This document is updated to reflect tax law as of October 2017.

Appendix B - Decision Tree – Determining Tax Status of Seminars and Courses Supplied by University or Public College

(See note 1)

Note 1: This flowchart does not take into account the application of the QST in Quebec and the retail sales taxes levied in non-participating provinces and territories.

Note 2: Course vs. Seminar: The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) does not generally consider workshops, conferences, retreats and seminars to be courses. Admissions to access or attend a workshop or seminar are supplies of intangible personal property for GST/HST purposes. Further, such supplies will not be exempt under any provisions in Part III of Schedule V to the Excise Tax Act (ETA) where they are provided primarily to adults. As a result, it is important to establish whether a particular supply made by the University or Public College is a supply of a service of instruction in a course, or a supply of an admission to a workshop or seminar when determining the tax status of that supply.

According to published CRA letters, factors indicating a supply is that of a service of instruction in a course include:

- the activity involves the provision of systematic instruction
- the supplier monitors or supervises the progress or learning of the participant
- the supplier assesses the participant's progress during the course of the activity and provides ongoing support, feedback and guidance to the participant
- the supplier may be available to assist the participant with the subject matter at a time and location different from the time and place in which the activity occurs
- the supplier assesses the competency of the participant upon completion of the activity by requiring the participant to formally demonstrate the knowledge the participant has acquired and if the competency is not achieved, the activity may have to be repeated
- the participant is required to invest time and effort outside of the activity (e.g. completing assignments, reading course material)
- successful completion of verified prerequisites may be required before the participant may take part in the activity
- the participant may be required to successfully complete the activity before being permitted to participate in another activity
- the activity is part of a series of activities leading to a formal recognition of skills
- the activity may be part of a program that consists of a series of two or more related activities
- the activity occurs at set intervals over an extended period of time such as weeks or months
- the activity does not include the provision of rights or if there is a provision of rights they are incidental to or part of a single supply or service
- the subject of the activity is broad
- the supplier advertises or promotes the activity as instructing participants
- the activity is promoted together with other activities in a prospectus or calendar prepared by an educational institution
- the promotional material indicates that the activity is part of a broader program which may lead to a formal recognition of skills, and
- the promotional material is aimed at persons who possess any prerequisites required to participate in the activity

Factors indicating a supply is that of an admission to a workshop or seminar include:

there is very little individualized interaction between the supplier and the participant

- attendance at the activity is sufficient for the participant to receive evidence of successful or satisfactory completion of the activity
- the supplier's purpose, with respect to the activity, is principally to provide information to, or to facilitate the exchange of information amongst participants
- the subject of the activity is narrowly focused
- each activity is discrete with no formal prerequisites for attendance
- participation in the activity does not serve as a prerequisite for participation in another activity
- the activity is promoted as a stand-alone activity
- the activity is promoted as a workshop or seminar to the general public
- the activity occurs during a brief, concentrated period of time, such as a few hours, a day or a few consecutive days

The CRA has also written that it does not have specific requirements as to the length of a course that is part of the program. If a course is part of a program of two or more courses that has been approved as part of a curriculum of a university or public college by a committee or other authorized body of the university or public college, the course will be exempt of tax under section 16 of Part III of schedule V to the ETA. (see flowchart)

Note 3: Suppliers may elect not to have their supplies exempted under this provision. Where the election is made by a supplier, supplies that would otherwise be exempt under the section will be taxable; assuming no other exempting provision applies.

Note 4: The CRA views a recreational activity as something designed to be an enjoyable diversion or pastime that occupies one's leisure time. A recreational course may be informative but, is mainly directed at satisfying the learner's desire for enjoyment or interest or, to enhance their social activities. Several factors may be examined in making a determination as to the status of a course including: the objectives and subject matter of the course, marketing of the course, methods of teaching, evaluation and monitoring of participant, consideration and terms for payment, qualification of instructors, etc.
